Criteria for registry marriages and civil unions

The criteria for registry marriages and civil unions is available in What you need to know about a Registry Ceremony. If your requirements are outside the criteria of a registry ceremony, you will need to discuss having a personalised ceremony with your celebrant.

Te reo Māori or English

There are Māori and English versions of the registry marriage vows. If you would like to use the Māori version, you will need to discuss that with your celebrant when booking the ceremony.

The couple will need to provide an interpreter, if the celebrant, couple and/or witnesses do not all understand the same language. Before the ceremony starts, the interpreter should sign the Declaration to translate a marriage or civil union ceremony. The form also needs to be signed by your celebrant.

Note for the celebrant: The full legal names of the parties must be spoken at least once during the ceremony. First, informal, or full names can be used elsewhere in the ceremony.
